Chelsea Council gets back to business for 2019 session

By Adam Swift

The City Council got back to business Monday night with a special organizational meeting and then quickly taking care of the new year's first agenda items.

As expected, the Council approved a second term for Damali Vidot as council president. District 2 Councillor Luis Tejada was voted in as vice president, and Yamir Rodriguez as the Council's delegate to the School Committee.

"I want to thank all my colleague's for entrusting me with one more year as president," said Vidot. She is the first female councillor to serve two back-to-back terms as council president.

Vidot said she is looking forward to a year of unity and respect on the council.

In other business, the Council unanimously approved funding for new contracts for the City's two police unions.

The contracts include a retroactive salary increase of 2.5 percent for FY17 and 3 percent for FY18 and FY19. There is also a 3 percent increase slated for FY20 and an additional 1 percent increase that goes into

Maronski elected chair of School Committee

By Cary Shuman

The School Committee elected Richard Maronski as its new chair during its first meeting of 2019 at City Hall. Maronski, who has been a member of the committee for three-and-half years, succeeds Jeanette Velez, who held the position for the past three years.

"I'm honored to be selected by my colleagues to lead the School Committee in the coming year," said Maronski. "I want to thank Jeannette for her leadership and the commitment he has shown to the students in Chelsea."

The son of Ann Maronski and the late Charles Maronski, Richard is well known in the community. He was the Chelsea High star quarterback who led coach Bob Fee's Red Devils to an amazing come-from-behind 34-26 victory over Everett in the 1980 Thanksgiving game. Maronski threw touchdown passes to Paul Driscoll to spark Chelsea's rally from a 20-0 deficit. Some fans call it the greatest game in the long history of the Chelsea-Everett series that ended in 1989.

Several members of Richard's family graduated from Chelsea High School, including several uncles and aunts, brothers and sisters, in a time period that ranged from the 1930s to 1990s. His popular sister, Patricia Maronski Yee, was a CHS cheerleader and graduated in 1990. Richard graduated in 1982.

"I'm very proud of my family's long history of attending Chelsea schools," said Maronski. "Everyone received a good, solid all-around educa-

CHS students perform at Gov. Baker's inauguration

By Cary Shuman

When Gov. Charlie Baker heard the Chelsea High advanced choir group Cantare perform at the Chelsea Soldiers Home Veterans Day program, he was very impressed.

Soon after Baker's office contacted Performing Arts Lead teacher and Cantare Co-Director Peter Pappavasseli and invited the group to perform at his inauguration at the State House.

Pappavasseli accepted the invitation and on Jan. 3, 24

CHS students had the high honor of performing at the inauguration.

The students, attired in their black and white formal costume attire, performed the song, "On Winter Mountain," in front of Gov. Baker, Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito, and all of the constitutional officers, state senators, state representatives, judges, and other distinguished guests in attendance.

"The song denotes winter imagery, but it ends with this feeling of peace and contentment," said Pappavasseli, who co-directs the group with Cole Lundquist.

A former outstanding high school and college vocalist with a rich history in music production, Pappavasseli fully understands the personal and historical significance of being able to perform at the gubernatorial inauguration which is a quadrennial happening.

"It's a once-in-a-career, if you're lucky, performance,"

Equitable Access

Chelsea school leaders demand educational equity for all students at Malden forum

By John Lynds

Chelsea School Superintendent Mary Bourque and Chelsea City Manager Thomas Ambrosino were two panelists Tuesday night at Malden High School during a forum calling on legislators to overhaul the state's current educational funding model to ensure equity for all students, especially those in low-income areas.

During the state's last legislative session a bill by State Sen. Sonia Chang-Diaz (D-Jamaica Plain) would have recalculated the cost to educate each student in public school districts known as the 'foundation budget' and poured millions of dollars into school over the next several years.

However that bill failed and educators like Bourque are calling this mechanism the state uses to provide students with equitable access to educational opportunities 'obsolete' and must be revised to meet the expectations of today's economy.

Because the state has not updated its education funding formula since 1993 to reflect districts' real health insurance and special education costs, the amount of aid being provided to cover those costs is too small.

To compensate, many districts like Chelsea end up using money that would otherwise have supported core education programs—including Regular Ed. Teachers, Materials & Technology, and Professional Development. This also results in dramatic cuts in other areas of education.

"The time is now because we have no more time left," said Bourque at Tuesday night's meeting. "There will be more cuts because we don't know where the money will come from. We cut all of our after school programs... elementary (afterschool) programs two years ago and middle school after school programs last year. It's time to make changes to the formula and we need to make the formula work for us. It is time to save the futures of our students and open those doors to the future. We can not af-

City looks to residents to name, define neighborhoods

By Seth Daniel

Ask 100 people where the Mill Hill neighborhood separates from the Mill Creek neighborhood and one would probably get 100 different answers.

Neighborhoods in Chelsea have been loosely defined for decades, with some not even named at all, but now Downtown Coordinator Mimi Graney is looking to residents of Chelsea to define the City's neighborhoods more precisely.

"It came up because City Planner Karl Allen has been working on a project by the Produce Center and he kept calling it West Chelsea," she said. "Every time he did that, people would laugh at it. It brought up the question as to what do you call that area. It was the same thing for the Walnut Street Synagogue area. Then you have people talking about Prattville. We decided to try to figure out what you call the various neighborhoods of Chelsea."

That started with a query of the Chel-Yea group last month, and during that event and with online follow ups, Graney said she got very impassioned responses.

People, she said, took it very seriously.

"Several people said everything was just Chelsea, but others had strong opinions about Admiral's Hill and Prattville," she said. "It has solic-

Some neighborhoods in Chelsea have been very loosely defined for decades, while others are firmly rooted and others have no name at all. Now, City officials are undertaking a fun, and impassioned, effort to gather input from residents about the names and boundaries of Chelsea's various neighborhoods.

APPRECIATION

Remembering Elaine Richard

By Cary Shuman

The greatest legacy of Elaine Marie Richard was seated in the front rows at the Our Lady of Grace Church.

The four loving and devoted sons, Ken, Jim, Jack, and Edward – these four scholar-athletes, all graduates of Chelsea High School and the best universities in the nation – led a beautiful tribute to their beautiful mother.

When it came time to encapsulate all that Mrs. Richard had meant to her family and the great example she had set for her children and the family, it was Jack Richard, who stepped to the lectern to deliver the eulogy.

A brilliant, personable man who excelled at Tufts University and Boston College Law School, Jack rose to the occasion with words that showcased the richness of his talents.

“Before I speak for my brothers, I should first speak for my mother,” he began. “Many of you here today have been so good to her through the years, and I know she would want me to begin by thanking you all and by telling you how much she and we appreciate all your kindnesses to her big and small.”

Jack told the assemblage that the day truly was “a celebration of life, a full life very well-lived and filled with great joys, but also marked by great sorrows.”

Jack said their mother grew up in a big triple decker in Chelsea “in a house full of family and faith” where she was doted on by her older sister, Marjorie, and brother, Edward.

Elaine Doherty Richard was an excellent student herself and graduated at the top of her class at the St. Rose School.

“When Elaine Doherty, that cute little girl, grew to become a beautiful young woman, she met the one and only love of her life,” said Jack. “Ken Richard was talented, handsome, strong, and as we kids would say, ‘wicked smart.’”

Elaine Doherty and Kenneth Richard married when she was 22. “The four of us were always so proud of both of our parents,” said Jack.

The four boys were born five years apart. Mrs. Richard would prepare meals for her four sons and her husband each day. She would send her sons off each morning to Our Lady of Grace School. The boys did their homework at night at the dining room table with the assistance of their mother.

“But day after day, every day, Elaine Richard did it all with grace and with cheer,” said Jack. “All in all, our mom, against all the odds at that time and place, she succeeded. She was proud to say she went 4-for-4 with her sons.”

But just as Elaine and Kenneth Richard “were about to enjoy all the benefits of their work – with all four kids in college, they were finally about to get some well-deserved time together for themselves, my young and healthy dad passed away suddenly,” related Jack. “My mother’s sweet and happy world was crushed. She was only 44 years old.”

Following the death of her husband, Elaine Richard “never quit on life and she soldiered on, and day by day, year by year, she built a new life and she taught us a lesson in grace and in perseverance, a truly good example.”

“If you know my brothers and me,” then you know Elaine Richard,” said Jack. He praised his brothers, “Ken, who was thrust in to the role of the man of the house when he was just a college kid, protective of us all and the most solid dependable man there is; Jim, a deeply spiritual man whose faith and his family are the very center of his life; and Ed, the best guy with the biggest heart who would do anything for you, but also with the strongest will of anyone I’ve ever known. We are what we are because of her.”

Jack Richard said this Christmas their mother gave the family “the most important gift and lesson.”

“She taught us how to die,” said Jack. “For two weeks, we had all been taking turns at her bedside, just as she had done with us so many times when we were sick as children. We got to say how much we loved each other. We held her hand and we told her how good she was. She spoke of how this family she had built would live on, in us, in her 12 grandchildren, in her five great-grandchildren.”

Elaine Doherty Richard died on Christmas day. She was 86 years old. She will be missed.

The co-director said the group has received several accolades for its superb performance that was captured live by television cameras from the Boston stations.

Supt. of Schools Dr. Mary

Bourque and Principal Lex Mathews were able to attend the inauguration and enjoy the students’ performance in person. Both administrators were understandably quite proud of the students.

“A lot of people saw it on television and it’s being shown on YouTube,” said Pappavasselio.

The contract also implements residency requirements for all new hires for the Police Department.

Later in the meeting, the Council also approved an amended residency ordinance for all police, fire, and civil service employees.

The ordinance requires that all personnel who live in Chelsea at the time of the hire must maintain residency for five years from the date of hire. Personnel who do not live in the city at the time of hire have six months to relocate to Chelsea.

Councillor-At-Large Leo Robinson cast the lone vote against the amended ordinance, using the example of a child who might have to look after sick parents as a possible reason an employee may not be able to relocate.

•During the public speaking portion of the meeting, some familiar guests dropped in to say thank you to the Council.

Several members of the Chelsea High senior class thanked the council for its recent vote to fund a turf field cover to the tune of $170,000 for the new high school field.

With the field cover, the senior class and subsequent classes will be able to hold outdoor graduations.

“We’ve put so much hard work into this, and everything that has happened has been amazing,” said Senior Class President Jocelyn Poste.

Poste and several other seniors presented the Council with a signed letter in appreciation for their efforts. They also asked the council for their signatures on a proclamation documenting the students’ and the Council’s efforts to work together to make the turf field cover a reality.

Students/Continued from Page 1

Brockton Public School Superintendent Kathleen Smith was the event’s moderator.

The problem for low income school districts like Chelsea is there is a growing equity gap between schools in Chelsea and schools in more affluent areas of the state. When faced with such shortfalls, high-wealth districts can often draw on additional, local revenue. Lower-wealth districts like Chelsea, however, are generally unable to do so and the consequence is that they spend less on resources that are critically important to the quality of education students receive.

“I do think there a lot of school systems in a financial crisis my expectation is that if this is not addressed in this legislative session we are going to have a lot of tough decisions to make like Brockton did where they had to lay off a significant amount of teachers,” said Am-brosino. “We are living in good economic times. State revenues have been running above estimates for quite some time so it’s time for the legislature to use this good fortune and make education a priority once again and invest in education. This is not easy and requires a lot of money so I don’t envy any legislators that have to work on this but budgets are all about priorities. A budget, simply put, is a policy statement on your (the legislation’s) priorities and the legislature once again has to make education a priority. If it doesn’t there will be too many ‘have nots’ in the Commonwealth once again.”

Estimates by lawmakers to fix the budget formula could be as high as $1 billion with Gov. Charlie Baker vowing to put forth his own proposal to fix the broken system after the House and Senate couldn’t agree on a solution last year.

However, Bourque said something has to be done and done soon because Chelsea is running a $7.4 million school budget gap between what the state covers for education and what the Chelsea School District is actually spending to educate students.

“Morally obligated to meet our students needs and provide for them so they can be successful and have futures,” said Bourque. “Sometimes, as a superintendent, I feel like we’ve been living on a ‘fixed budget’ since 1993 and that fixed income is not working. The result is that we are stretched too thin.”

Maronski also served as president of the Chelsea Youth Basketball League and coached two teams in the league. He was also the CHS freshman boys basketball coach.

A former Chelsea city councillor, Maronski has established his priorities for the new year.

“My first priority is to form a committee of Chelsea residents to help select a new school superintendent (Supt. of Schools Dr. Mary Bourque has announced that she will be retiring from the position),” said Maronski. “We are working with the Collins Center at UMass in the selection process.”

Maronski would also like to address the issue of Chelsea sea teachers leaving the school system for positions in other school districts.

“We have a high turnover in teachers in the Chelsea schools,” said Maronski. “I’d like to see more stability in our teaching positions.”

Maronski said the School

Developer looks to build 33 units on 7-11 in Cary Square

By Seth Daniel

A Winchester developer has filed with the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) to build a five-story, 33-unit residential apartment building on the site of the closed 7-11 and its parking lot in Cary Square.

Anthony Quiles has filed the project with the City and had an initial hearing on Tuesday night, Jan. 8, with the ZBA, and will proceed to the Planning Board for a meeting later this month.

The project will be sited at 176-178 Washington Ave. and will contain 44 parking spaces (50 are required) for the 33 units. There will be a roof deck and other amenities. The project includes no open space and requires seven pieces of relief, including height variances and parking permits.

The unit breakdown would be nine studios, 15 one-bedrooms, and six two-bedrooms.

The Chelsea Fire Department has already voiced its concerns with the project as they do not believe they can access the building due to the size of the building on the lot.

“I am not in favor of a development of this size... which encompasses the entire lot with no setbacks on both sides and the rear,” wrote Deputy Richard Perisie. “The Fire Department should have access to at least one side for apparatus placement.”

Councillor Leo Robinson said he has called for the development to go down to at least 25 units and to add a retail venture on the first floor, preferably a grocery store/convenience store.

He said he was very disturbed that the purchase and sales agreement by 7-11 with Quiles details that no such retail operations can go there. He said he wants to see about changing that.

“My concern and what bothers me is that 7-11 put in the agreement not to allow a grocery store to go there,” he said. “That is detrimental to that part of the city. It is heavily used by the elderly at 14 Bloomingdale and the people from the neighborhood too. The fact of the matter is I’ve talked with the City Solicitor and the City Manager and I think there is a tool in our tool bag we need to use. I don’t think 7-11 should punish us for their failure not to run a good business. There has always been a grocery store there since I can remember.”

School Committee votes to bring in Collins Center for super search

By Seth Daniel

The School Committee voted last Thursday at its meeting to employ the Collins Center from the University of Massachusetts-Boston to assist in the search for a new superintendent of schools.

At the same time, the Committee put an aggressive timeline on the search, looking to have a candidate chosen by July 1.

New Committee Chair

Rich Maronski said they felt the Collins Center did a good job with the City Manager search a few years ago. He said they plan to have a retreat meeting with the Center this week to understand the search parameters and to get things started.

Supt. Mary Bourque announced in late December that she planned on retiring in one year’s time, putting a date of December 2019 as her final month. She has pledged to stay on to help with the search and to acclimate any new candidate to the job through next fall.

City Manager Tom Ambrosino said he was sad to see Bourque go, but is encouraged by the Committee’s quick action on the Collins Center.

“Selfishly, I’m sad because Superintendent Bourque has done a tremendous job as leader of the Chelsea School System, and her and I had a very productive partnership,” he said. “However, she is certainly deserving of her well-earned retirement. As for the search, I was pleased to hear that the School Committee has agreed both to hire the UMAss Collins Center to help with the search for a successor, and to hire a Superintendent for July 1 so that the person will be able to work together with Mary for the first six months to establish a smooth transition.”

More information on the start of the search and the process is expected by next week, Maronski said.

BRUINS Beat by Bob Morello

Bruins get the bounce

It’s not very often that the Bruins have been on the receiving end of lucky ‘puck bounces,’ but Tuesday night versus the Minnesota Wild, they definitely were. When you factor into their 4-0 whitewash of the Wild, which included Patrice Bergeron’s 14th goal of the season banked into the goal off his skate, and then the unlikely bounce of John Moore’s shot which bounced off the spoked-B on Jake DeBrusk’s jersey and into the net for his 14th of the season, I guess you could say it was a bit of ‘puck luck’ for Boston.

In addition to the bounces of the puck, the Bruins skated and dominated throughout the game, managing the puck well, while Tuukka Rask managed to keep the puck out of the Boston net with 24 saves, while on his way to his first shutout of the season, the 42nd of his career, and his 250th win – not a bad night’s work.

In all fairness to the Wild, they didn’t arrive in Boston until 3:00am on Tuesday morning game day, following a grueling 1-0 win over the Montreal Canadiens Monday night in tough set of back-to-back games, while Boston waited, and rested. In earning their fifth win in a row, the Bs jumped off to a quick start in the first period, putting three pucks behind Minnesota’s backup goaltender Alex Stalock. Boston’s first line once again figured heavily in the scoring, with Brad Marchand and Bergeron each notching three points with a goal and two assists. It was a game that saw some help come from the blueline as well, with Torey Krug and John Moore each earning a pair of assists. The strong effort was highlighted by the power play and the penalty-killing teams which ended up with Boston going 2 for 2 on the power play, and 3 for 3 on the all-important penalty-kill which has now totaled 15 for their last 15 kills. Rumor has it that Bruins defenseman Charlie McAvoy may return to the lineup on Thursday from his six-game absence, and face the Capitals.

For the Bruins the schedule will continue to be heavy, with six games to be played in the next ten days leading up to the All-Star Game in San Jose. Coming up will be the defending Stanley Cup Champion, Washington Capitals, currently riding a two-game win streak, and holding the number three spot, two points ahead of the Bruins in the Eastern Conference standings. In an attempt to end the tough luck the locals have endured when playing the Capitals in the past, coach Bruce Cassidy offered up this thought when asked if he had a goaltending plan: “We haven’t had much success against them (Washington), so we’re leaning towards, I’ll tell you flat out (Jaroslav) Halak, because he hasn’t started against them in a Bruins uniform. So kind of like (when we played) Anaheim – throw a different guy in there and get a result. That would be a switch and getting Jaro his game, but Tuukka’s now earning the – I don’t want to say the net back, I don’t think that’s the appropriate term, but more starts.”

With a game scheduled at least every other night for the Bs, the January workload continues with a trip to Toronto on Saturday (7:00pm) to face the high-scoring Maple Leafs, who are also two points ahead of Boston, in both the Atlantic Division and the Eastern Conference standings. This is the first of three important games on their upcoming schedule, as the Bs will host division rival Montreal Canadiens on Monday (7:30pm), followed by a trip to Philadelphia to take on the cellar-dwelling (36 points) Flyers (Wednesday 7:30pm), then returning to TD Garden ice for a two-game homestand. On Thursday (1/17 at 7:00pm) they take on another cellar-dweller (38 points), the St. Louis Blues, with the final game leading into the All-Star Game break coming on Saturday (1/19 at 7:00pm) with the New York Rangers who are currently riding a four-game losing streak.

CHARLIE BAKER IS NOT AN ‘ENIGMA’

A story this past week on the eve of Gov. Charlie Baker’s State of the State address in the Boston Globe stated that although Gov. Charlie Baker is the most popular governor in the country (he has an approval rating of close to 70 percent among Massachusetts residents), he remains “an enigma.”

The central theme of the story boiled down to this: What makes Charlie Baker do what he does -- and why does he not have political ambitions beyond the governorship?

No doubt the writer of the article had in mind every Massachusetts governor of the past three decades: Michael Dukakis ran for president; Bill Weld ran for U.S. senator, was a candidate for ambassador to Mexico, and most recently was a candidate for vice-president on the Libertarian Party ticket; Paul Cellucci became ambassador to Canada; Mitt. Romney ran for president; and Deval Patrick is rumored to be a possible presidential candidate.

By contrast, Charlie Baker long ago said he has no designs on higher office beyond governor. To the political pundits, Baker’s lack of higher aspirations no doubt is confounding, as is his attention to the minutiae of state government.

We are not personal friends with Charlie Baker, so we have no special insight into his personality, but we think it is clear what it is that makes Charlie Baker who he is and do what he does: He loves his wife, his children, his parents, his native hometown (Needham), his adopted hometown (Swampscott, where he served as a selectman), his state, and America.

He clearly wants to do the right thing for all of them -- so what’s so strange about that?

We would note that Charlie Baker’s devotion to his job is in stark contrast to so many of the politicians in Washington. Thankfully, he has recognized that politics is the art of compromise and it is thanks to Gov. Baker’s ability and desire to work with the Democrats at the State House, most notably House Speaker Bob DeLeo, that Massachusetts continues to lead the nation in education, financial stability, and in so many other areas that have improved the lives of our citizens.

Beacon Hill is indeed a shining beacon for the rest of our nation and Charlie Baker unquestionably has been instrumental in our state’s continued achievements and progress -- and there is nothing enigmatic about that.

DiDomenico sworn in for another term in the Senate

Staff Report

Last week, Senator Sal DiDomenico was sworn into a fifth term in the Massachusetts Senate, pledging to continue fighting for our Commonwealth’s working families and working to lift up children and families throughout his district. DiDomenico represents the Middlesex and Suffolk District comprising of the residents of Allston, Brighton, Cambridge, Charlestown, Chelsea, Everett and the West End of Boston.

As he once again took the oath of office, DiDomenico was joined by his wife Tricia, sons Matthew and Sal, his parents Marie and Sal, and members of his staff.

"It was an honor to once again be sworn into the Massachusetts State Senate for another term, and I would like to sincerely thank my constituents for your trust and confidence," said Senator DiDomenico. "Together, we are a proud and diverse district that represents the very best of our Commonwealth, and representing you in the Senate is a privilege that that I will never take lightly. I would also like to thank my amazing family, my outstanding staff, and my tenacious team in the district that works tirelessly to make sure that we have one of the strongest campaign organizations in Commonwealth."

The swearing in of the Massachusetts Senate was a day to reflect on past accomplishments and look to the future, as the 40-member body once again voted for Senator Karen Spilka (D-Ashland) as Senate President.

"The last session was very productive, and we passed major pieces of legislation that will have a positive impact on the lives of millions of people in our state," said DiDomenico. "I look forward to another successful session working with my colleagues under the leadership of my friend, Senate President Spilka, to address an ambitious agenda of fighting climate change, addressing our inadequate and inequitable public education system, and the high cost of healthcare, among many other pressing issues for the residents of the Massachusetts."

Graney has produced a map with suggested boundaries and names. So far, they have included Prattville, Mayor’s Row, Chelsea High, Addison-Orange, Soldiers’ Home/Powderhorn Hill, Cary Square, Mill Creek, Mill Hill, Spencer Avenue, Eastern Ave Industrial Area, Box District, Bellingham Hill, Salt Piles, Waterfront, Downtown (including Chelsea Square and Bellingham Square), Williams School, Carter Park, Mystic Mall, Produce District and Admiral’s Hill.

It was difficult, she said, to find the real boundaries of the Soldiers’ Home neighborhood versus Cary Square, she said, and many said the Spencer Avenue area should be called Upper Broadway. Mill Creek, on the other hand, has been confused in some ways with the Parkway Plaza.

She said the exercise is one that moves beyond the fun of talking about it, and moving towards making it a place.

"The legacy of the fire in the Mystic Mall area sort of upended most boundaries there," she said. "People are uncomfortable with the area beyond Carter Park and Chelsea High area. If it doesn’t have a name, it becomes this no man’s land. Naming a place has a power to it. I’m hoping people in these areas claim that power in that naming."

Graney said they will continue to take input on the neighborhood boundaries, and will likely present something to the community in the near future.
